PRESIDENT WILL START TRIP WEST ON WEDNESDAY

As He Prepares for Journey Wordy Combat Over Black Continues

GLASS DOUBTFUL ANYTHING BE DONE

One Major Speech Is Planned During Trail Reaching Coast

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt faced westward tonight with flight in his eyes.

He prepared tentatively for at least one major speech on his journey across the continent, then packing his bags, arranging for a few days at his Hyde Park home before taking to the road with all of the trappings of a red hot campaign year.

A clear indication of what may be expected in the back platform appearances, the numerous short talks and the speech that mark his trail across the country had already been given in his Constitution day speech.

In that he had renewed his indictment of the supreme court, urged that the country be loyal to the constitution and "not to its misinterpreters," warned that danger of dictatorship walked arm in arm with laggard social reform.

Even as he spoke, making no mention of the raging controversy over charges that Hugo L. Black, his newly named associate justice of the supreme court, was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, new statements in that wordy combat were in the making.

"Waste of Time and Talk"

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, a Democrat who has often had his tilts with the New Deal said at Lynchburg he had no idea that anything could, or would, be done by anyone to remove Black from the court.

"It is now a waste of time to be talking about it," Glass said.

"My vote against the confirmation of Senator Black for the supreme court reflects then and now my judgment of the utter unfitness of his nomination, regardless of the Ku Klux Klan charges."

From Senator Loneragan (D-Conn.) came a statement saying judgment should be withheld until Black spoke.

"The first responsibility of nominations rests with the President making them," he said.

"If a fair hearing discloses that Justice Black is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, he should resign from the supreme court or, in fairness to the President and the senate, make a statement repudiating the principles of the Klan."

"If he fails to do so I think congress should take action on the ground of concealment of a material fact."

Claim Charges By Enemies

But from Senators Pepper and Andrews (D-Fla.) Russell (D-Ga.) and Schwartz (D-Wyo.) came statements praising Black and saying the charges originated with confirmed enemies of the administration.

Whatever Mr. Roosevelt's feelings on the subject, he said no word as he worked over the final details of his itinerary for the western trip, though in his last night's speech he had said with some emphasis strong words about intolerance of all sorts.

"The present government of the United States has never taken away and never will take away any of the liberty from any minority, unless it be a minority which so abuses its liberty as to do positive and definite harm to its neighbors constituting the majority," he said.

The final plans for the trip to the Pacific coast will be worked out at Hyde Park. He leaves there Wednesday. Thus far the stops that have been tentatively set down are at Bonneville, Fort Peck and Grand Coulee dams, the Bremerton Navy Yard and Yellowstone National Several "educational highway signs" along Highway 50 coming into Sedalia from the east late Friday night or early Saturday morning were turned upside down by pranksters according to reports made in Sedalia Saturday.

These signs are property of the Missouri State Highway Department and anyone caught defacing or molesting them or any signs of warning nature are subject to prosecution by the State of Missouri.

SHOW-DOWN IS NEARER IN CRISIS ON ANTI-PIRACY

Italy Receives Coldly a Fresh Invitation For Part in Patrol

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—European powers moved nearer a showdown in the Mediterranean crisis tonight as Italy received coldly a fresh invitation to join the "anti-piracy" patrol.

A new turn in the question of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war was indicated by reports fresh Italian volunteers were being enrolled. European capitals saw increasing dangers to the general peace arising from that conflict.

Perils at sea were illustrated anew by the attempt of an unidentified airplane to bomb the British destroyer Fearless off Gijon, government port of northern Spain. The destroyer was not hit, and London officials said they believed the attack was due merely to mistaken identity. The plane might have belonged to either Spanish faction.

Admiralty officials scouted reports that a submarine had fired a torpedo at the British airplane carrier Glorious in the Mediterranean.

Great Britain and France gave Italy another chance to join the nine-power patrol to crush attacks of merchant shipping the Mediterranean. Again Rome indicated refusal. The Fascist press printed defiance of the second Nyon conference decision to include "piratical" warships and airplanes along with submarines as targets for guns of the international fleet.

The new offer was regarded as the Nyon powers' last word unless Italy submits a definite proposal to join.

Silent On Reports

Officials in London were silent on reports that France and Britain had agreed to demand again the withdrawal of all foreign fighters in Spain. The implied threat was that if foreign volunteers were not withdrawn, the Franco-Spanish border would be opened.

French and British abandonment of the "hand off Spain" committee's naval patrol was interpreted as a prelude to this step.

Some quarters interpreted the new "anti-piracy" agreement and the end of the non-intervention naval patrol as a move likely to aid government Spain. Government armies, they said, would find it more difficult to aid France.

These sources pointed out that such a result would prolong the civil war stalemate and reduce the chances of eventual Italian-German domination in Spain.

At Salamanca, Spain insurgent authorities charged the Spanish government with trying "to sink British ships by any possible means" in order to provoke an international conflict.

The official note on "red piracy" making these charges declared the Valencia government was anxious to "drag the world into the horrors of the conflagration" because it would help its cause.

LARGE BARN ON LAMM FARM BURNS

One of the largest farm feeder barns in the county was destroyed by fire of unknown origin about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the Lamm Brothers farm just west of the Missouri State Fair grounds. The estimated loss was more than $3,500 according to Donald S. Lamm, one of the owners.

The barn 20x60 was filled with sudan and oat hay and some farm equipment, valued at more than $500. The barn was valued at $3,000. There was partial insurance coverage on the barn but none on the contents.

The last person known near the barn was about 11 o'clock Saturday morning and it was said he did not smoke. The fire was discovered about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and before anything could be done to save the structure it was on fire all over.

The farm is owned by Donald and Henry Lamm.

POSTMASTERS TO HAVE MEETING HERE TODAY

BURSTING SHELLS CREATE TERROR FOR AMERICANS

U. S. Marines Arrive Off Woosung To Reinforce Guards

RAIDS AT SHANGHAI ON WATERFRONT

U. S. Flagship, Augusta and Other Vessels Endangered

By The Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18.—(Sunday)—The transport Chaumont arrived today off Woosung, in the Yangtze estuary above Shanghai, with 1,435 United States Marines.

The marine detachment brought American forces in the Shanghai war sector to 2,700 men, and will reinforce United States guards who have patrolled a section of the international settlement without relief since the Sino-Japanese conflict broke out in Shanghai five weeks ago.

The new reinforcements, members of the sixth regiment United States Marines, were dispatched from San Diego.

Convoys by the light cruiser Marblehead, the transport passed safely through Sino-Japanese artillery and naval gun fire below Woosung in the early morning, unscathed by the spirited exchange of shells.

Huge American flags whipped from her masts as warning to both belligerents not to fire on the American craft as the Chaumont cautiously picked her precarious way up the warship-dotted river.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18.—(Sunday)—Japanese anti-aircraft shells, fired at the Chinese bombers, endangered the United States flagship Augusta and other foreign warships on Shanghai's waterfront during repeated Chinese air raids last night and early today.

Shrapnel burst over the international settlement, bringing new terror to Americans and other foreigners. Four Chinese were killed and fourteen wounded in the settlement and the French concession.

One anti-aircraft shell pierced the French concession residence of F. B. Lynch, American adviser to the Chinese finance ministry. It lodged in a bathroom, but failed to explode.

Lynch and his wife, asleep in an adjoining bedroom, escaped injury. The 42-millimeter projectile apparently came from the Japanese war fleet three miles away.

Casualties thus far were few in comparison to those during other raids. Shanghai residents have learned that when an air bombardment begins the streets are not safe.

Bombs Start Fires

Chinese bombs started raging fires among foreign warehouses in the Yangtzeport district of the settlement.

The new outbreak started when four Chinese planes dropped bombs on Japanese positions in the Yangtzeport district and Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river. It followed a heavy Japanese artillery bombardment of the Markham road section in which Japanese shells crashed into the area near defense lines occupied by United States marines.

Japanese anti-aircraft shells fell dangerously close to the Augusta, and shell fragments struck some of the foreign men of war. The Augusta was holding a movie show on deck when the raids began. As shells started to fall nearby, sailors dashed below decks for safety.

One daring Chinese pilot dived to within 500 feet of the Japanese flagship Izumo and sprayed its decks with machine gun bullets. He escaped the hail of anti-aircraft fire which showered shrapnel over the international settlement.

Shanghai suffered a sharp setback in its attempted return to normalcy. The Cathay and Palace hotels, struck by bombs on "bloody Saturday," Aug. 14, were in the midst of reopening ceremonies as the air bombardment began.

A company of British firemen fighting a blaze started by Chinese bombs in the Yangtzeport sector had a narrow escape when the bombers returned and dumped a new load of explosives.

Japanese Make Advance

PEIPING, Sept. 18.—(AP)—A Japanese aviator returned from the front southwest of Peiping today to report he had seen an armored train flying Japan's Rising Sun flag steam into Kaopietin, 56 miles from here on the Peiping-Hankow railway.

That apparently marked the greatest advance of the offensive Japanese powerful mechanized forces which are driving toward Paoingfu, main Chinese base about 90 miles below Peiping.

TRUCE BRINGS END TO CORN "SQUEEZE"

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—The "squeeze" collapsed in September corn today and was accompanied by an almost vertical drop of eight cents a bushel in price.

A "truce" in a prolonged battle between a giant northwest grain company and Chicago professional traders was unofficially reported to have ended the "squeeze" which had Board of Trade officials in a dither.

The unofficial "truce" was said to be a compromise which enabled "short sellers of corn" to buy back their contracts from the big grain company when it was ascertained they would be unable to deliver the contracted corn and faced expulsion from the Grain Exchange for failure to do so.

Word of the "truce" was skipped around the La Salle Street brokerage house before trade started. Prices eased off slightly at the opening which was $1.12 to $1.13 a bushel for September corn. This later was expanded to a three cent decline. Then the market steadied and prices fluctuated uncertainly around $1.10 a bushel until about 15 minutes before trading ceased for the day.

Then, like a punctured balloon, prices dropped almost vertically to $1.04 1/2 a bushel. This was the maximum decline permitted in a single day's trading and tumbled the price to 12 cents a bushel below the peak of $1.16 1/2 reached Friday at the height of the "squeeze." The declines in the last few minutes were as much as a cent a bushel at a time.

CHINA CARRIES ITS PROTEST DIRECT TO PRESIDENT

Possible Damaging Effect "Discussed" of Restriction on Munitions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—China carried directly to President Roosevelt today its protest against the chief executive's order placing a partial embargo on shipments of arms and munitions to the far eastern war zone.

An official white house statement said Ambassador C. T. Wang had "discussed" with the President the possible damaging effect of the restriction on China's conduct of its undeclared war with Japan. There was no indication of any presidential intention to reduce from his order.

Still another aspect of the Sino-Japanese conflict apparently was studied by Mr. Roosevelt during a visit to the white house by Secretary Hull, accompanied by Hugh Wilson, assistant secretary of state who is the state department's League of Nations expert.

Hull's call on the President, which followed closely that of the Chinese ambassador, gave rise to reports that the chief executive and his principal diplomatic advisor had talked over the possibility of United States participation in deliberations of the League of Nations advisory committee which will consider the far eastern crisis.

Consultative Member

The United States was a consultative member of this committee when it functioned during the Sino-Japanese conflict over Manchuria. In reconstituting it to deal with the present far eastern crisis, the league announced that the United States would be invited again to send a representative.

Official comment was withheld on the nature of Hull's visit, however.

Dr. Wang was smiling faintly when he left the white house, in sharp contrast to the visible agitation he displayed upon leaving the state department yesterday after presenting his government's protest over the embargo to Secretary Hull.

Nevertheless, he refused firmly to make any statement.

Whether he formally appealed to the president to override Secretary Hull's direct rejection of his protest yesterday was not generally known.

The President's edict forbade government owned American ships from transporting munitions and implements of war to either China or Japan and warned other American merchant shipping that if it attempted to carry such cargoes it must do so at its own risk.

Bothwell Hospital Notes

Billy Monsees, eleven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Monsees, Smithton, underwent an operation Saturday. His condition was reported good Saturday night.

Mrs. George Ellis, 3200 East Broadway, was admitted to the hospital and underwent an operation. She was reported as doing nicely.

Mrs. Morton Heffernan, R. F. D. No. 3, gave birth to a girl at the hospital early Saturday morning.

Marriage License Issued

Ralph Drake Salmon and Hazel Louise Neighbors, both of Sedalia, Mo., were given a license to marry.

Few Sidelights On Legionnaires

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Eight members of the Fort Wayne, Ind., 40 and 8 voltuure who refused to ship their six-ton motorized locomotive by train drove it here under its own power in three days, and gave Broadway's traffic coppers a bad Saturday afternoon by touring the bright spots.

Largest of the 40 and 8 engines, the Fort Wayne locomotive is 30 feet long, has 2,700 rivets in its sheet iron body, and in the tender has a monster-sized ice box well stocked with hometown beer.

The Commonwealth Edison Drum and Bugle Corps, national champions, arrived and promptly formed marching order to take a playing trip up Broadway to 59th street.

Taxis have blossomed out with signs "no trips from legionnaires." The drivers are wearing legion hats.

L. McNally of the national contests committee, estimates there will be 600 bands and 500 drum corps in the parade Tuesday. If his estimate is correct it will better any existing legion record.

Adjutant Jerry Duggan of Missouri arrived with the announcement the "Show-Me" states would come along tomorrow, 600 strong and accompanied by a band and four drum and bugle corps.

DOUGHBOYS TAKE POSSESSION OF NEW YORK CITY

Thousands Whoop Things Up Preceding National Convention

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Doughboys took possession of New York tonight, and nothing was quiet on any front.

The roar of reunion rose louder and louder over the normal quiet of riving machines and elevated trains as the troops of the American Legion moved in for their annual meeting, and the wide-eyed folk of Broadway stuck their fingers in their ears and fled to the soothing clatter of the subways.

Drums rolled, bugles blared, bells clanged and cannon boomed out notice that the army again was here after twenty years.

Traffic was snarled all over town, and there were no quiet side streets. Legionnaires were on all the streets. Legionnaires on foot, Legionnaires in automobiles, Legionnaires in motor rigs rized up to look like boxcars (boxcars like they ride in France) and mounted with cannon that boomed frightening booms.

There were other Legionnaires arriving on trains. There were Legionnaires coming in boats. There were Legionnaires coming in airplanes. One man even came in on roller skates. He said he was from Wyoming, but wouldn't give his name, explaining:

"Ma's at home, and she might worry."

The invasion began early this week, but the tumult and the shouting did not rise until Detroit's voltuure of "40 and 8" crashed in from New Jersey meadows last night. Up and down Seventh Avenue the voltuure roared, hanging away with its boxcar cannon and clanging its locomotive bells. Today another cannonading boxcar showed up on Fifth Avenue and with one blank cartridge shot broke up an anti-war picket line of youthful Communists.

Traffic Is Confused

Policemen were everywhere, in twos and threes and sometimes sixes trying to bring order out of the confused traffic.

American flags, Legion banners and bunting of red, white and blue fluttered from the facades of stores and office buildings. Apprehensive merchants, here and there, tempered the gaiety of their welcome around their shop windows.

Before Sunday dawn, Legion officials estimated 50,000 visitors would be cranning hotels and lodging places for the convention which opens Thursday. Before the official opening with Sunday night's memorial concert they expect another 250,000.

Units for the big parade on Tuesday were arriving hourly tonight to supplement leaders already on hand for committee meetings. Heavy debate was under way about the successor to National Commander Harry W. Colmery, of Tonawanda, Kas. There were five candidates for the job: Milo Warner, Toledo, Ohio; Daniel J. Doherty, Boston, Mass.; Lynn Stambaugh, Fargo, N. D.; Ray Kelly, Detroit, Mich.; and Stephen A. Chadwick, Seattle, Wash.

A total of 1,333 accredited delegates were expected to vote.

Far-away places were already represented in the army of occupation. Carmine Casolini was here from Italy, and Capt. J. P. Anderson, of Shanghai, was a delegate from China.

OPEN HOUSE AT NEW FIRE STATION THIS AFTERNOON

Strictly Modern Building Erected at a Big Saving To The City

APPROXIMATE COST TO SEDALIA $1,800

Conveniences and Comfort With Attractive Surrounding Provided

This afternoon the City of Sedalia will hold open-house for the citizens of Sedalia at the newly constructed Fire Station No. 1, on the northwest corner of Fourth street and Montgomery avenue, between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. The citizens are invited to visit the station at which time they will be shown through the building and a demonstration of the new fire doors will be given.

The interior is decorated with garden flowers.

The new station is part of a building program started by Mayor Julian Bagby and the City Council under the WPA Work Program under the direction of Judge Frank Monroe. This work began last February when the old two-story landmark in East Sedalia was torn down.

Modern Fire Station

The old building has been replaced with one of the most modern fire stations in Central Missouri, is now completed and is ready for the occupancy. The cost of the building to the City and citizens of Sedalia, through the aid of the Federal Government and the Works Progress Administration, by the employment of WPA labor, has been built and finished at an approximate cost of $1,800.00. Had it not been for WPA labor and materials furnished by the Federal Government, officials declare, this building and equipment would have cost the city approximately $8,000.00.

The building is a one-story brick building, 24 ft by 82 ft, facing Fourth street to the south, and is constructed to conform to the requirements and regulations of the National Fire Underwriters and City of Sedalia Building Code, in every particular, including 12 in. brick walls, and all plumbing and electrical wiring, with built-up asphalt roof and electrically operated exit and entrance door at the front.

The most modern equipment for fire station buildings. The building is provided with all modern conveniences and living quarters for firemen, including equipment for forced ventilation.

The main floor interior has four rooms with a shower bath and toilet. The large front room is where the fire truck is located, a small room is built into a small kitchen, then there is a larger room which has eight large lockers for the firemen to keep their belongings and off this room is the shower. There is a large room to the rear used as the firemen's bedroom where three beds are located. The woodwork is finished in walnut, the interior is painted in a cream color with the floor and walls in the truck room painted in a maroon red.

Has Recreation Room

Under the whole north half of the building there is a modern refurnished basement in which there is provided a recreation room for firemen and fuel room.

This building is entirely constructed by hand labor, the trim of the building such as window sills, lintels and coping are all of poured and polished concrete finished by the WPA workers.

The grounds around this building have been seeded down to grass, and flowers and shrubs are being set to landscape the grounds to make the building and lot one of the most beautiful places in East Sedalia.

Mayor Bagby, Fire Chief John G. Lucke, and members of the Fire and water committee and other members of the city council will be at the building to welcome the visitors.

WILL TELL ROTARY OF HUSKING CONTEST

"National Corn Husking Contest in Saline County" is the subject of the regular noonday program at the Sedalia Rotary club to be held at the Bothwell Hotel Monday.

George Jordan, representative of the Missouri Ruralist, will be the speaker on the program. Mr. Jordan who was largely instrumental in bringing the national contest to Missouri and Saline county, will give a verbal picture of what will occur on November 3 and 4, the dates for the corn husking.

Miss Virginia Dennis, queen of the National Corn Husking Contest, and a party of Saline counties will also attend the meeting.

JOBLESS MAN FINDS BUNDLE OF BILLS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—Louis Correa, with a wife and son in need of medical attention was looking for work yesterday. He stumbled onto $150 in a bundle of bills. Without hesitation he took them to the nearest bank, which investigated and learned a money transportation firm had lost the money. Correa today renewed his search for work.

DALTON RESIGNS CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE STATE G. O. P.

B. T. Mattingly Mentioned Prominently for Successor

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., Sept. 18.—Grover W. Dalton of Poplar Bluff tonight announced his resignation as chairman of the Republican state committee.

Dalton, re-elected last September for a two-year term, said he had decided to resign "because of business and also because of plans for establishing a permanent state headquarters in St. Louis." He said he believed the chairman should be in position to have close contact with the state headquarters. His resignation had been rumored in Republican circles for some time.

Meantime, Dalton announced a meeting of the state committee will be held in St. Louis Wednesday, September 29, "for the purpose of electing my successor." He said notice of the meeting was being mailed tonight to all members of the committee.

Prominently mentioned as Dalton's successor is B. T. Mattingly, St. Louis attorney and a member of the state committee. While Dalton declined to discuss this matter, he said "I have received many letters from all over the state expressing sentiment for Mattingly, and no other candidates have been mentioned."

BOYS TAKING CAR FIGURE IN WRECK

A Ford V-8 coupe used as a pickup, owned by the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., driven here by W. C. Spillman, allegedly stolen from its parking place on the east side of the court house about 8:30 o'clock Saturday night by two boys endeavored to make a hurried getaway and crashed into the rear of a parked car on Fifth street, the court house side of the street, a few seconds later.

The boys racing the motor of the car, backed away from the curb and endeavored to speed south, when a car approaching from the east on Fifth street, caused them to swerve to the west. The driver unable to straighten the car drove it into the rear of the Chevrolet knocking it over an eight inch curb.

The two jumped from the car and ran north across the court house lawn and disappeared down an alley between Third and Fourth street west from Lamine avenue.

The Chevrolet is owned by O. V. Singleton, Benton county farm extension agent, who was down town with his family shopping. Willard Glenn, also of Warsaw who accompanied Mr. Singleton to Sedalia was sitting on a bench by which the boys ran, but he was unable to give chase because of a sore foot. Another boy followed the two to the alley but they out-distanced him and disappeared.

Mr. Spillman, who resides at LaMonte, had driven to Sedalia to attend the picture show, parked the car on Lamine avenue about 7:30 o'clock in the evening and did not know of it being taken until about 9:45 o'clock.

The right front fender and light was badly smashed on the Ford while the rear bumper and trunk on the Chevrolet was smashed in.

The dragon said Pennsylvania Klansmen would support the President "even if he asked Justice Black to resign."

The Klan official issued a statement after two business sessions of the hooded order.

"We will stand by the President to the last degree," the dragon said, "and we should take the same stand if Justice Black was a Catholic or a member of any other denomination."

A NATION GONE BERSERK

There is nothing so discouraging to an individual making a serious effort to advance and by progressive steps find his place in the sun, than to be continually maligned by those who witness his struggles. Sooner or later he becomes berserk—an anomalous personification to his critics. It is a travesty on the doctrine of the golden rule.

Individuals can work assiduously to further a community or national project yet there are always those who question their motives.

For generations the Japanese have struggled to rise above isolation and develop a proud race. And at every step their motives have been questioned. They have been called treacherous, ambitious, barbarous, hypocritical. It has been a din in their ears. A proud individual cannot stand this repetitious calumny; neither can a race; neither can a nation.

Ever since the days of Rome when derivative epithets were hurled along with javelins at barbarian hordes to the north, smaller pride-pricked tribal chieftains have risen above it by brute force. The Colonies did it. Italy, the weak sister of the World War, today defies the British lion.

And what have the so-called civilized nations offered the Japanese as an example before she engaged in her latest enterprise? No bloodier bombing of non-combatants ever occurred than that perpetrated on Madrid and other Spanish towns. Some representative of almost every race has been a participant in this tragic civil strife, not to mention the quiet yet active support of both sides by national governments.

American sentiment inclines toward the Chinese as it always has when a weaker nation is embroiled in difficulties. But not so long ago Americans favored the Japanese in their war with the Russians.

We cannot understand the Japanese mind. Is it any wonder that they cannot understand us? Vociferous criticism only agitates them to increased determination and sterner measures. Shouting never stopped a dog fight.

MISSOURI BACKS CLARK IN NEUTRALITY EFFORT

It is historic that the foreign enterprises of every country rarely are entered into on a purely investment basis. In backward countries, they invariably are gone into as speculative or gambling activities relatively little being risked to gain much.

With this in mind, it would be folly for us not to stand firmly as a neutral in the present Japanese-Chinese conflict. We have neither inherent nor legal rights outside our own domain, nor reason to claim either. When American citizens alienate themselves and their wealth to the point of expatriation, they should not assume even the color of a right to entangle those of us who have stayed at home and expended our energies and money in upbuilding our own country.

For this reason, Missouri backs Senator Bennett C. Clark to a man in his attempt to keep us clear of war hysteria by insisting that our armed forces remain within our own borders. He has shown himself, experienced as he is in foreign affairs, the most able and outspoken member of the senate in opposition to foreign entanglements. We want no war. We have had several.

THE STAGE WAS SET

The more we hear of what has gone on at this year's Nazi party rally at Nurnberg, the more we wonder that an American diplomat is officially accredited to represent this country there.

It is plain by now that one purpose of virtually forcing the attendance of foreign diplomatic representatives was to provide a setting for the Fuehrer's address. In this, he invited the democratic world to forsake its ideals in order to form, with Germany and Italy, an efficient front against communism. It must have appealed to him that his German public, bemused as it is by censorship, still might find this astonishing invitation more plausible if assured, through the attendance of diplomats, that the democratic world at least was listening.

At any rate, we can think of no better explanation for the fact that this year's invitations to the rally came directly from the Fuehrer himself through the foreign office. Hitherto Berlin diplomats have received their invitations less officially from the Nazi party and have disregarded them. This year it was felt, at Washington as well as at London and Paris, that non-attendance might be construed as an affront to the German government.

What is done is done, of course, and possibly the incident at worst is of no vast importance. Nevertheless, we can not but regret the lack of back bone that permitted an American diplomat to be made use of as a stage prop in a demonstration designed as a slur at democracy.

Affront or no affront, it would have served democratic ideals if the invitation had been declined, with the observation—unexceptionable under democratic philosophy—that a political party rally is just that and no more, and no place for a diplomat.

"Democratic government in this country can do all the things which common-sense people have the right to expect. I am determined that under the Constitution these things shall be done," said President Roosevelt Friday night. Call him a stubborn Dutchman if you like, our president still wins the admiration of a sport-loving public for his determination of no retreat in his battle for a workable Supreme Court.

There may be implications in the presence of Governor Bibb Graves sitting on the left side of President Roosevelt as he delivered his Constitution day speech. In the light of the Black-Klan controversy this was rubbing it in a little, eh, Mr. President?

The definition of tact is: skill in doing what is best or most suitable in given circumstances.

WASHINGTON—One of the major problems Roosevelt now faces is that of keeping outstanding and able men in his Administration. Their exodus to private life has been so rapid as to be a serious handicap, and the next to depart will be Joseph Patrick Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime Commission.

By Christmas Kennedy expects to have started American shipping back on an even keel, at which time he will leave Washington.

In that case the New Deal will lose its most gifted trouble-shooter. For Joe Kennedy is the man Roosevelt has called upon more frequently than any other to handle important emergency situations. As far as the public knows, his two big jobs have been the organization of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Maritime Commission.

But behind the scenes, Joe has done everything under the sun. At present he, rather than Cordell Hull is chief adviser to Roosevelt on neutrality and the protection of merchant vessels in the Far East. He is also Roosevelt's right-hand man on the problem created by the slipping stock market, did heavy lobbying on the Supreme Court reformation bill, and was asked to take over the reorganization of the Federal Communications Commission.

In fact, Joe even helped the President's son-in-law, John Boettiger, get his job as publisher of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Nine Children
 Every man loves prestige and power, and Joe Kennedy is no exception. Every man also loves physical comfort, and Joe lives in one of the most ornate and comfortable houses in Washington. His bathrooms have gold plumbing, his motion-picture theatre seats 200 people, his swimming pool frequently is used by the President, and his view of the Potomac is unsurpassed anywhere along its gorges.

Nevertheless, Kennedy hates to live in Washington. Key to this—in fact, the key to his entire character—is his children. Joe has nine of them. When he first tells you about them you think it is just soft sentimentalism. But later you can tell it isn't.

Joe honestly would rather spend his time with them than in the most glamorous job in Washington. Also he has an earthy Irish urge to pass on to his children enough money to make them comfortable.

Since Joe has large ideas regarding comfort, this means quite a bit of money. And the one thing worrying Joe about the New Deal is whether financial insecurity may upset the children's inheritance.

Last year Joe paid $600,000 in taxes. He figured that a Roosevelt New Dealer couldn't dodge taxes, even if wanted to.

Trouble Man
 In private business, Kennedy has been just as much of a trouble man as in the Government. He has been called in on various big organizations, among them the Radio Corporation of America. After it was over he was asked in a stockholder's meeting what his fee was. He could have dodged. But with characteristic frankness he replied: "I have just come from a commission in Washington (the SEC) where we believe in telling the truth. My fee was $500,000."

The stockholders were breathless. Kennedy made most of his money in the motion picture business. He has headed the Film Booking Offices of America, the Keith Albee, Orpheum Theatres, the Pathe Exchange, and now a chain of theatres in New England.

All his life Joe has also been active on the stock market, now can almost instinctively tell weeks in advance how the market is going. It was not unnatural, therefore, that a hue and cry of criticism greeted his appointment as chairman of the SEC.

No SEC Power
 But instead of turning into a reactionary, Kennedy was just the opposite. And his keen Wall Street nose detected carefully concealed pools just as his unerring eyes once fathomed the tickler tape.

Kennedy does not hesitate an instant when his own business interests are at stake. He leans over backward against them. For instance, one of his investments (before he joined the Maritime Commission) was in a whiskey importation agency.

Unknown to him, his agency, together with other companies, had complained because shipping rates were too high.

Rates were based upon former prohibition days, when every shipment, being bootleg, paid a penalty. After three recent protests, the whiskey importers combined to hire a Norwegian steamer with a guarantee that it would carry 150,000 cases per month.

Atlantic Rates
 One day Kennedy's agent told him about this new and cheaper Norwegian vessel. Kennedy replied: "Say, didn't you know that I was chairman of the Maritime Commission, I'm supposed to protect American shipping, not use its competitors."

And he gave immediate orders that all of his further shipments must go on American liners regardless of the extra expense.

Joe Kennedy has two great qualities in life. One is loyalty to friends. He would do anything for one of them. The other is a complete frankness in advising the President.

Kennedy is one of the few men who can sit opposite Roosevelt and call a spade a spade. He does not mince words. The President doesn't always agree with him, sometimes ignores his advice. But Kennedy hits straight from the shoulder just the same.

Not long ago, at the gathering to watch Miss Leland receive her doctor's degree, Mrs. Roosevelt, who is a very wise woman where her husband is concerned, remarked to Kennedy: "I want you to go right on telling Franklin exactly what you think."

You're Telling Me

A Californian announces, after a 20-year survey, that apple pie is the nation's favorite. Now all we have to determine is which is preferred—deep dish or open face.

This certainly has been a busy summer. Everyone has been so much interested in current developments that no one has thought to organize a swat-the-fly movement.

When someone wishes to talk to you about the problems of modern youth it's a certain bet he's over 50 himself.

Husbands who are slow to agree with their wives generally lose out. Usually, when they finally agree they discover their wives have changed their minds again.

WHO LOVES THE RAIN

Who loves the rain
 And loves his home,
 And looks on life with quiet eyes,
 Him will I follow through the storm;
 And at his hearth-fire keep me warm;
 Nor hell nor heaven shall the soul surprise.
 Who loves the rain
 And loves his home,
 And looks on life with quiet eyes.

BANANAS, MILK GOOD FOR MEALS

Combination Is Fine for High School Luncheon

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We have come to the season of mists and mellow fruitfulness; the voice of the turtle is no longer heard in the land, and the hum of business indicates less leisurely and perhaps less elaborate lunches.

For a high school lunch (I do not recommend this for younger children) or college lunch, or business lunch, consider the banana. Long a favorite, perhaps it will comfort you to know that it has solid, scientifically proved nutritional advantages.

First get a ripe banana. You can tell when the banana is ripe by the skin; yellow flecked with brown spots. Many changes have taken place in this banana since it was green. In the green state it has 20 per cent starch and 1 per cent sugar; when ripe it has 18 per cent sugar and 2 per cent starch; most of the starch has been converted into more easily digested and higher energy-containing sugar. The insoluble substance which cements the cells of the green banana together, protofibrin, has been converted into a softer form of roughage, pectin. The acids and alcohols of the green banana have been converted in the ripening process into esters, amyl acetate, etc., which give the appetizing aroma.

Bananas have practically no protein and fat, and are therefore ideal for making up diets for kidney disease.

They have vitamins A, B, C, E and G. (No vitamin D.) Minerals present are: Calcium, manganese, phosphorus, sulphur, iron and copper.

Source of Energy
 Bananas are a good source of energy, a good source of calories; they tend to stimulate the growth of the beneficial acid type of bacteria in the intestinal canal, they are blood regenerating, and will digest with little mastication.

Combined with milk, bananas make up an almost completely balanced ration. The milk provides the protein and fat, and possibly the vitamin D. The milk and banana diet of Harrop has been used successfully for reducing. Its virtue is in its simplicity. Here are the instructions for it.

When used as a continuous diet, one or two large bananas are used with a glass (250 cc.) of whole milk for breakfast and for lunch. For the evening meal the same is used if the strict diet is followed (six bananas and three glasses of milk a day), or if the modified diet is followed, the evening meal may consist of a clear soup, a slice of lean meat (fish or fowl), two or three portions of 5 per cent vegetables, a slice of bread and butter, and a portion of uncooked fruit. With the modified plan the diet contains 1,000 to 1,200 calories.

Ambitious to be a dress designer, Mary Barrett accidentally meets Tony Castle, owner of a smart New York dress shop. After examining some of her sketches, he offers her a job.
 (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

THE LILAC MAN eyed Mary Barrett and stepped briskly around to the front of his cart. Mary eyed the lilacs, looked at the contents of her slender purse and sighed. She pretended to look into the windows of the Flea Market, and her nose wrinkled deliciously as the perfume of the fragrant flowers came to her.

It was no use to resist them she knew. Fifty cents was half a dollar, an important sum, but she had to have the lilacs because who can deny that lilacs were April itself? She crossed the street with the coin in her hand.

She had to have them because she had to bring the spring into her home. In other Aprils she had gone out to meet it, walking long distances in the April twilights, her dreams lending wings to her feet. In those days her dreams had been vague things, the romantic visions that even now were within her grasp. Now they were coming to her; she was not going out to capture them only in fancy.

To the models, the seamstresses, the tailors and Tony Castle, she was the new apprentice. She was, "Hey, girly! Watch that iron!" or, "Miss, run down to Farber's and get eight spools of silk to match this violet."

But to Mary Barrett, swinging along this April evening on her sensible low-heeled shoes, her eyes bright and gay above the lilacs in her arms, she was an apprentice only to art.

If her tasks were menial and her pay barely enough to pay the rent on the studio apartment overlooking the river and to purchase her few needs, they represented no limits to her sphere.

In a little while she would be free to take out and spread before her the treasures that she gleaned from those same menial tasks, so happily undertaken.

There were drawbacks to this opportunity that had come to Mary Barrett—so let us see and accept and dismiss them as she did. There was the back-breaking fatigue of lifting heavy irons. There was the incessant torture of being on her feet long, weary hours. There were indignities too numerous but too small to mention.

But—

There were the hours, when rested by her bath, after her light supper she stretched on her lounge and had her day to review, her growing knowledge to parade across her memory. The big little things she was learning—the trick of getting lines, the manipulation of fabric that distinguished a gown from a dress. Oh, she was an apprentice wielding heavy irons, hopping about in a crowded, dusty, hot workshop with needles and scissors and pins. But she was learning and saving her knowledge against the day when she was going to need it.

She owed it all to Tony Castle. Tony who had smiled as one does to a child when she had confided to him that she was going to be a great one day.

An American had no chance, he had said. "Americans don't have the feeling for it."

The only chance she wanted was right where she was. In Tony Castle's workshop. So she thought the next night when already the lilacs had faded.

Out of doors, in the April twilight, the world was quickening. Once-weary feet on high stilted heels tapped a spritely cadence along the sidewalks and disappeared into the subway kiosks.

Head waiters surveyed the window tables benignly. Telephone bells were beginning to tinkle summons to April gaieties. The cherry trees blossomed along the wall of Central park and, from across the way in the mansions on Fifth avenue, eyes of servants and masters alike gazed on their beauty with a sense that something new was beginning.

The night made you think of violin music and fragile frocks, of white flowers and delicious foods and cocktails sparkling in thin-stemmed glasses.

Perhaps it made you think of that. But to all this chaste awareness of the earth, this champagne in the air, Mary Barrett gave an unheeding ear.

The wrist watch in the pocket of her smock—placed there because it was heavy on her aching arm—marked 7 o'clock. The last of the girls had left, she thought. It was dark and cool and blessedly quiet in the workshop back of the perfumed salons of the Castle shop when Mary came back, from her locker where she had gone to get her small bottle of milk and the sandwich she had brought in at noon.

She was not as alone as she thought. In the shadowy dimness, Louise, the tallest of the blond models, was wriggling herself into a svelte frock.

"Oh dear, she thought, if she's working, I can't stay. Aloud, she said, "Need any help?"

"And how! Only they don't make shoe horns big enough to use on dresses." Her head emerged and she saw Mary, sandwich in hand.

"Old Legree keeping you working tonight?"
 "No, I'm not working." Mary answered. "I'm staying to study the Boucher gown Mrs. Long brought back from Paris. I can't figure out how that under-sleeve is cut. I thought I'd study it."

"Well, you're a queer one! On a night like this you think of sleeves. Well, sleeves are better than broken hearts. I think I'm going to get my heart broken tonight at that!"

"Not if you look as pretty as you do now," Mary said honestly, watching Louise improve expertly on nature.

"Look out for Francine Long," Louise warned, moved to a friendly gesture. "That gal's dynamite and she didn't hire you personally, so beware!"

Mary continued to eat her sandwich placidly. Francine Long did not disturb her and she saw no reason why she should disturb the designer.

Mrs. Long was Tony Castle's foreign buyer and his right hand. She was brittle, chic, cold as ice and as perfect a machine as Mary ever expected to meet. She hoped that someday when she owned a shop like Tony's, she'd be lucky enough to have someone like Mrs. Long to work for her.

It was true that Tony had engaged her while Mrs. Long had been in Paris. Mary remembered with a slight, swift feeling of insecurity, but then she remembered Tony and felt secure again. After all, even though she didn't like Mrs. Long, there was no reason to fear her.

She brushed the crumbs up into her paper napkin, rinsed out the milk bottle and washed her hands. Then she went over to the Boucher gown which had been left on a form and studied it from all angles. A small frown grew on her forehead. She rubbed her chin on her hand, trying to find the solution to the problem that bothered her. How could you get a diagonal twist like that? The frown cleared away; she'd make a pattern and work it out that way.

Oh dear, she thought, if she's working, I can't stay. Aloud, she said, "Need any help?"

"And how! Only they don't make shoe horns big enough to use on dresses." Her head emerged and she saw Mary, sandwich in hand.

"Old Legree keeping you working tonight?"
 "No, I'm not working." Mary answered. "I'm staying to study the Boucher gown Mrs. Long brought back from Paris. I can't figure out how that under-sleeve is cut. I thought I'd study it."</

Choices and Their Consequences

"Brass Tacks" on the Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Joshua 24:15—"Choose you this day whom ye will serve."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
 (The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 19 is Deuteronomy 11:8-12, 26-32, the Golden Text being Joshua 24:15, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve.")

The book of Deuteronomy is made up of a series of six farewell addresses of Moses, delivered to the children of Israel during a period of forty days immediately preceding his death. Moses' final warnings, injunctions and encouragements to the nation are embodied in these farewells, the second of these, from which our lesson is taken, is the longest, running through chapters 5 to 28, and explains the nature of the obedience God demands, and pronounces the blessings of obedience and the curses to follow disobedience.

Blessings of Obedience
 "Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command thee this day, that ye may be strong, whither ye go over to possess it, and that ye may prolong your days in the land, which Jehovah sware unto your fathers to give unto them and to their seed, a land flowing with milk and honey." It would be tremendously difficult to drive out the strong and warlike peoples inhabiting the land, whose wickedness was about to be judged by God in their extermination. By their obedience they would be acceptable as Jehovah's agent, and he would abundantly bless them in a land rich in blessings: "A land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven, a land which Jehovah thy God careth for: the eyes of Jehovah thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year." In other words, continued fertility and fruitfulness require more than natural causes to explain them. God's favor and blessing are not to be crowded out of consideration. Godliness and obedience to God's law may prove quite as effective in averting drought, dust storms, flood, pestilence and the like, as do some of our man-made schemes for controlling the forces of nature.

Curse of Disobedience
 "Behold I set before you this day a blessing and a curse: the blessing if ye shall hearken unto the commandments of Jehovah your God, which I command you this day; and the curse if ye shall not hearken, but turn aside out of the way I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known." "Not to the strong is the battle, not to the swift is the race, but to the true and the faithful victory is promised through grace." Nations rise or fall as they tend to further or thwart the laws of God and the progress of his kingdom.

Ebal and Gerezim
 The necessity of national choice and the consequent result in blessing or curse were to be dramatically impressed upon Israel by the picturesque ceremonies attending the reading of the law after they were come into the heart of the new land. With half the nation arrayed on Mount Gerezim facing the other half on Mount Ebal, the priests solemnly read the law with its blessings and curses in the hearing of all: "Thou shalt set the blessing upon Mount Gerezim, and the curse upon Mount Ebal." God's one mount and his "cursed" from "blesseds" sounding forth from the mountain and his "cursed" from the opposite should impress us as God intended it to impress Israel, and should lead us to Christ to receive his "Blessed," for he took unto himself our "cursed" on the tree of his cross.

TELL TALE EYES

Certain specific parts of the iris (colored part) of the eye are connected with certain parts of the body and when that part is diseased there is a change in the color of the eye in proportion to the extent and the severity of the disease even indicating if it is acute or of long standing. If the patient is getting well the changes in the iris indicate improvement.

Many years ago I used it in examining all patients and still use it in some in connection with spinal analysis. Determining disease conditions by this method is called Iridiagnosis and enables one to determine many conditions not otherwise discoverable. It is of great help in doubtful cases. Through examination of the eyes I have been able to inform a person of impending stomach trouble three years before symptoms appeared indicating that disease conditions are a gradually developing process in some cases and do not start from the moment of distress.

It also indicates that the moment that distress ceases the condition has not completely recovered because it takes time for the remedial process to be completed. Iridiagnosis verifies the spinal analysis in most cases and thereby proves the contention of chiropractors that disease is associated with displacement of spinal vertebrae.

TO CELEBRATE FEAST OF TABERNACLES

Temple Beth El, West Broadway and South Missouri avenue, will begin the celebration of the Biblical Feast of Tabernacles today, with a symbolic representation of the ancient tabernacles of the wilderness adorning the altar. Rabbi Samuel Halevi Baron is to conduct the opening service for the eve of the holiday—known in Hebrew as Sukkos—at eight o'clock tonight. He has announced as the subject of his sermon, "The Appointed Seasons."

Additional services for the festival will be held on the eve of the eighth day, next Sunday, and on the eve of the intervening Sabbath, next Friday. Young people's services for Sukkos are also to take place in connection with sessions of the Religious School this morning and next Sunday morning, at ten o'clock.

Sukkos, the Feast of Tabernacles, will be celebrated by the Jews of this community and by their co-religionists, for eight days beginning Sunday evening, September 19, 1937. The joyous nature of this harvest and thanksgiving festival contrasts with the serious mood of the High Holiday season just ended.

The festival concludes with a celebration in honor of the completion of the annual cycle of readings from the Torah, the scroll of the Pentateuch. The last verses of Deuteronomy are read, the scroll is rolled back, and the reading of Genesis is begun again.

In ancient times, Sukkos was one of the three great agricultural festivals that were the occasion of a pilgrimage to the Temple at Jerusalem. Today Liberal Jewish leaders have utilized the holiday as the time for a "consecration service" in which young children are formally inducted in the religious school.

In modern Jewish religious thought the idea of thankfulness for God's providence, and gratitude for His bounty as manifested in nature is the central theme of the observance of Sukkos.

COALITION URGED BY VANDENBERG IN RALLY ADDRESS

Outlines Proposal For Opposition To "Roosevelt Party"

By The Associated Press.
BAY CITY, Mich., Sept. 18.—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) called tonight for "a union of hearts and hands regardless of previous party lines" as the only form for successful opposition to what he termed "the Roosevelt party."

In an address prepared for delivery at a statewide Republican rally here, Michigan's senior senator proposed, in effect, coalition of anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans. The speech was broadcast over a national (CBS) network.

"A realignment is inevitable," Senator Vandenberg said, "indeed, it already obviously exists." Then he continued:

"Republicans and Democrats—in and out of congress—have been in repeated coalition against a new party (the Roosevelt-Farley-LaFollette party) for the preservation of great American fundamentals which transcend normal partisan division. Republicans and Democrats have closed ranks in common cause for the defense of American institutions."

Defeat By Coalition

Vandenberg said the coalition was responsible for the defeat of President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization bill.

"Our Republican task at the moment," Vandenberg said, "is to fearlessly assess national problems to take frank counsel of our own errors, as well as of our sterling achievements in the past; to win the renewed confidence of those citizens who, regardless of party, still think more of their country than of themselves; and to put Republicanism in the strongest possible position to make maximum contribution in 1938 and 1939 to the recapture of sound, solvent, truly liberal government, and to the restoration of effectual authority for law and order under an unbroken constitution of the United States."

Outlining the path he believed his party should take, Vandenberg said it should veer neither to "the extreme right" of "blind and often suicidal conservatism" nor to "the extreme left" of "brooding revolutionaries, too frequently inspired by alien impulse and ideals," but straight down the middle of the road. "We are eager for liberal progress on sound lines, but proposing no price for votes save the price of service to the common welfare denying special privileges alike to millionaires or mobs—saving public credit, and thus saving the people's dollar from disintegration—striving for ever-increasing employment and an ever-widening participation in the fruits of their own production by those who toil, but declining to destroy a sound economy under which to enjoy their achievement—aiming to lift the one-third up, and less to pull the two-thirds down—loyal to the spirit of the living constitution and incorrigibly hostile to all its enemies."

Vandenberg said "the first and most fundamental issue that confronts us is the maintenance of the American constitutional form of government," and added that "more laws have been found unconstitutional since March 4, 1933, than in half a century preceding."

For Expanding Wagner Act
On subject of labor relationships Vandenberg remarked that "the whole country knows that this administration at Washington winked at trespass and condoned lawlessness for many months" and that "some of its spokesmen actually lent aid and comfort to this anarchy."

"The Wagner Act," he said, "should now be expanded to stop erring labor as it stops erring capital."

Calling for "partnership" between capital and labor, Vandenberg said "personally, I believe that the way this partnership can best become a practical reality is through a standard formula of direct profit-sharing, federally encouraged by tax exemptions and tax rewards."

Need For Economy
Vandenberg also called his party's attention to need for sound governmental finances, based on economy. "Pious, petty gestures toward economy," he said, "indicate that even the administration realists are themselves beginning to get scared at their own improvidence. But the gestures are puny and pathetic in the face of the damning record. Santa Claus still moves merrily upon his way—just two jumps ahead of the referee in bankruptcy."

Vandenberg asserted "there are practical ways for the government to economize if there is a will and added 'it can't be done by * * * liberals' whose 'liberalism' consists chiefly of being 'liberal' with other people's money' * * * by cockeyed economists who pay $35 an ounce for all the gold that Russia can mine $11 an ounce * * * by political manipulations to whom civil service is a pain-in-the-neck * * * by immoral racketeers whose expedient conception of finance is to further their own party nest by selling the presidential signature for $250 apiece on old, secondhand campaign books * * * by flinging hundreds of millions of public money into government enterprise in competition with private business * * * by the cheat-trick of revaluation * * * or * * * by turning the treasury of the United States into a campaign chest."

The Michigan senator said "the public credit can be saved, sound and dependable money can be restored, dread inflation can be stayed, if earnest, devoted men, conscious of those needs and armed with the courage of their convictions, shall address themselves to the insistent task that two and two shall again make four."

Despite his remarks on the subject of coalition, Senator Vandenberg insisted "I do not pretend to know what the future has in store for political parties in the United States."

"If 1940 were 100 years remote it could not be farther away in terms of authentic prophecy," he said. "There may be a realistic realization which shall bring like-thinking patriots into common battlefront whether they live north or south of the Mason and Dixon line, whether they live east or west of the Mississippi river. It is entirely possible that our institutions may not otherwise be saved. But whether this points toward the emergency of a new coalition party under a new name, or whether it points to sympathetic cooperation under hospitable Republican banners, events alone can tell, and we need not now inquire."

"We of Michigan," Vandenberg told his audience, "wrote Republicanism's birth certificate. We do not intend to write its obituary. We have saved the government before in difficult situations. We shall save it again."

Saying that the nation faces "an economic and political and material crisis," Vandenberg closed his address by warning that "in the next three years we shall be called, not to traditional campaigns, but to fateful crusades" in which "justice and equality and the largest measure of mass prosperity and mass happiness x x x must have our relentless dedication."

Japanese accounts described the battle as a series of almost uninterrupted Japanese gains, in spite of desperate Chinese stands at some points.

The offensive, with some 60,000 troops, including 20,000 cavalry, was launched early Tuesday with the purpose of smashing Chinese forces totalling some 200,000 which had blocked the Japanese advance below Peiping for weeks.

Park. He will spend two nights and a day in Seattle, visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger.

Tentatively, the major speech of the trip has been set for Bonneville. But already ceremonies are being arranged for some of the other stops.

Too, the route will take Mr. Roosevelt across the home states of several of the senators who opposed the court plan. The President feels very strongly on that subject and he speaks easily.

CHARGES ON TWO IN FATAL ACCIDENT

By The Associated Press.

NEOSHO, Mo., Sept. 18.—Charges have been filed against two men as an outgrowth of the death last night of John B. Brown, 52, Pierce City, who was struck by a motor car, Prosecutor Wayne Slankard said tonight.

Harry Wright, about 37, Springfield, was arraigned this afternoon in justice court on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Wright, according to Slankard, allegedly drove the car that killed Brown.

Claude Williams, 35, Diamond was charged with driving a car while intoxicated. It was when his car stalled that his companion, Brown, alighted and attempted to flag a second car only to be killed, Slankard said.

L. Burnett, 35, Springfield, said by Slankard to have been in the car with Wright, is being held, the prosecutor said, as a material witness until after an inquest scheduled for Tuesday.

Bride of Three Months Killed
SALEM, Mo., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Riley King, 20, a bride of three months, was killed today when an automobile driven by her husband overturned on highway 32 three miles east of here.

Library News
(By The Librarian)

Recent fiction in circulation at the Sedalia Public Library includes: And So—Victoria, by Vaughn Wilkins. England in the late 1790's and early 1800's when Victoria was a baby and her dissolute, unstable, Hanoverian uncles were plotting against her succession, is the main scene of the book, with brief episodes in Germany, Texas and elsewhere. Romantic melodrama.

The Citadel, by A. J. Cronin. The rise and fall of Andrew Manson, M. D., who, throughout the development of his practice, maintained his ethical standards. The early years were ones of happiness except for the loss of his only child. Success brought material wealth but spiritual poverty had estranged him from his wife who still retained their old ideals. A rude awakening brought him to his senses just in time to reunite him to his wife.

Deep West, by Ernest Haycox. Wyoming, cattle country, strong men, guns, law and order in the 1880's when the west was the deep west. Jim Benbow's struggle to save Hat Ranch, his friendship for Clay Rand, and his love for Connie Dale make this an exciting "western."

Miss Buncle's Book, by D. E. Stevenson. Pleasant, mildly sentimental story of what happened when Miss Buncle, impelled by the distressing failure of dividends, wrote a book about her English village and didn't disguise the characters. Marriage with her publisher provided a fortunate escape when the neighbors discovered the author's identity.

The Paradox of Mr. Pond, by G. K. Chesterton. Mr. Pond, to whom whatever is, is probably two other Irishmen one of whom is an Eskimo—solves 8 puzzling cases. Full of surprises, amusing, supremely readable.

Storm Over Eden, by Helen Topping Miller. The happiness of four young people is very nearly wrecked before Ann Magill, pampered Southern beauty, learns to shoulder responsibility. A good love story with southern town and the Texas oil fields for background.

Twenty-Four Hours a Day, by Faith Baldwin. Christine Carstairs, costume designer, remains with the firm after her marriage to its president. The difficulties and problems that arise from the attempt to correlate business and marriage are small, but frequent, until the arrival of Sara Thorpe.

You Can't Have Everything, by Kathleen Norris. A powerful, dramatic novel of today, vibrant with the tempo of modern life, divorce, and its complexities, adventure and travel in far places, climaxed in deep appreciation of home ties and awakened knowledge that "one can't have everything."

BITTER DIVISION ON CHARGES OF SPAIN 'INVASION'

Assembly of League of Nations Heads For Open Airing

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The League of Nations assembly headed tonight toward a bitter division on charges of German and Italian "invasion" in Spain's civil war.

The Spanish government premier, Dr. Juan Negrin, set the stage for an open airing of the controversy. He termed Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Adolf Hitler "international highwaymen" and demanded that the League force an end to their "intervention" on behalf of Spanish insurgents.

His resolution asking that the question be submitted to the League political committee paved the way for bringing the controversy to the assembly floor.

There Italy and Germany, although not represented themselves, will keep in touch with delegates sympathetic to insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Government Spain is certain of Soviet backing.

Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, whose government has accused Italy of "piracy" in the Mediterranean, announced his intention to speak on the issue.

Negrin asked the League to adopt a five-point program it demanded: that the League recognize "German-Italian" aggression against the Spanish government; that it "examine" a means of putting an end to this aggression; that foreign volunteers be withdrawn from the Spanish conflict; and that the Spanish government have the right to acquire freely necessary war materials.

The most important demand, however, called for extension to government Spain of the "measure of security" adopted in the Mediterranean, and Spanish government participation in the measure.

This reference was to the nine-power "anti-piracy" patrol of the Mediterranean which excludes both government and insurgent Spain from its protective arrangements.

From the summer's work they planned an exhibit to be placed at the county meeting on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Roy Stewart with Mrs. Pete McFarland and Mrs. T. A. Leftwich assistant hostesses.

The topic for next meeting will be "Handwork."

Mrs. P. R. Burford, president of the Sedalia district of the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers, in her talk on "What the Parents Expect of the School" stated that many parents expect the impossible of the school but that parents should expect the teachers to have an understanding and love of childhood, to be likable and fair, and to help the child to form the right attitude toward the duties of citizenship.

Girl Scout Executive Tells of Educational Values of Program

"Schools sufficiently train the capacity to go at a task set by somebody else. The ideal of the Girl Scouts is to learn, little by little, how to give a wise, resourceful, and civilized answer to the terrific judgment day question, 'What do you do when you are free to do as you like?'" says Mrs. Landon Welsh, Girl Scout executive discussing the organization's purposes preliminary to the annual Scout drive for funds.

"The Girl Scout organization cannot fail to be welcomed more and more heartily by the educator. If the home influence is dwindling; then we are the more grateful for an agency that takes the child beyond school hours and places him in a natural growing atmosphere.

"The freer schools and especially organizations like the Girl Scouts are working out new ways of stimulating the individual to effort, of helping him to discover his instinctive capacities and most profitable lines of expression and development, and of cultivating the individual self-respect and regard for others at the same time. The attitude involved in these procedure is in turn essential to wholesome family life and to eventual home-making. "The Girl Scout movement could not forge ahead as it does without the intelligent and loyal help of teachers who give a part of their leisure each week to Girl Scout leadership. These teachers like young people and understand them; and their background of educational theory and practice is, of course, the ideal background for the Girl Scout captain or camp counselor. In like manner teachers often find Girl Scout training and experience a professional asset. It gives them a new relationship with the girls to whom as leaders they are companions and not superiors.

THE CARNIVAL OF CHAMPIONS TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Three Titles Will Be At Stake In Polo Grounds Bouts

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The nearest thing to a pugilistic "world war" since the gaslit days of the gay nineties will be put on next Thursday night at the Polo grounds while the American legion is in town.

Notwithstanding opposition from the Legion's own fistic party, an all-amateur show on the same night at the Madison Square Garden bowl, Promoter Mike Jacobs will produce his "carnival of champions" as the climax event of the outdoor boxing season in New York.

Three world championships will be at stake on the same evening for the first time in fistic history.

Sixto Escobar, Lou Ambers and Barney Ross, respective holders of the world bantamweight, lightweight and welterweight crowns, will meet the challenges of Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, Pedro Montanez of Puerto Rico, and Ceferino Garcia of the Philippines.

A fourth major attraction involves Marcel Thil of France, holder of the European middleweight crown and claimant of the world title, versus Fred Apostoli of San Francisco. By official edict, however, this has been stripped of title significance. The recognized world 160-pound titleholder in this country is Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash.

All four bouts will be over the championship distance of 15 rounds. The Thil-Apostoli bout is slated first, followed in order by Ross-Garcia, Ambers-Montanez and Escobar-Jeffra. If all go the route, there will be more than four hours of fisticuffing.

There seems some mystery why Promoter Jacobs didn't avoid conflict with the prior-scheduled amateur show of the American legion which has the advantage of being free to legionnaires, where as it will cost up to $16.50 to see the professional program in the Giants' ball park.

Despite the conflict, the carnival of champions is expected to draw a crowd of 50,000 and attract gross gate receipts of $250,000. The Jacobs box-offices report an advance sale superior to that for the recent Louis-Farr heavyweight tilt. The eight principals have been guaranteed close to $200,000. Experts share the wagering opinion that Ross is the best bet to retain his title and Montanez the favorite challenger. Escobar rules a slight choice over Jeffra, and Apostoli generally is picked to out-punch the bald-headed Frenchman, Thil.

MISSOURI VALLEY FOOTBALL BRIEFS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—St. Louis university footballers, junior members of the Missouri Valley Conference, will make their first public debut tomorrow afternoon against a strong freshmen eleven. One of the problems that Coach Cecil Muellerleile will attempt to solve in the Sunday practice session is the disposition of the excellent halfbacks he has for the coming season. He has seven men who could conveniently be turned into first-stringers at a moment's notice. The St. Louis U gridders were idle today.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Two sophomore halfbacks may draw the starting call over a pair of lettermen when Washington university at St. Louis opens the season against Drake at Des Moines next Friday night.

Coach Jimmy Conzelman said he is impressed with the showing of Jack Warner of Chicago and Leo Shakofsky of St. Louis, indicating he would start them and hold last season's regulars, Bill Ferrecky and Bob Minkey in reserve. Conzelman plans at least three more stiff scrimmages seasons before announcing his complete line-up for the Drake contest.

More than 90 frosh—also the full roster—saw action but not the goal line in the two hour workout under game rules.

Don Johnson, St. Joseph, and Dan Wager, Kansas City, each counted twice for the Big Six eligibles. Don Camfield, Neosho; Charles Mosier, Chillicothe, and Clyde Nelson, Granite City, Ill., also stepped into pay territory. Stan Mondala, Chicago, and William Amelung, St. Louis, divided duties at kicking the extra points.

2 MILE RECORD TO CUNNINGHAM

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Joe McCuskey, the veteran New York A. C. distance runner, added a pair of outdoor American records to his list of running feats in the club's fall games at Travers Island today. The one-time Fordham star outshone Kansas Glenn Cunningham, a fellow Olympic athlete, as he ran one four-mile handicap event in the time of 19 minutes and 45 seconds. He surpassed both the American outdoor record of 20:02, made in 1913 by Hannes Kolehmainen of Finland and the American citizens' outdoor mark of 20:08.2, made the previous year by L. Scott. Cunningham, who scratched his mile entry in order to try the two-mile run, shattered the meet record for the distance and Johnson, just back from a European tour, turned in a fine high-jumping performance.

The flying Kansan finished in 9:24.6, more than three seconds faster than the 35-year-old meet mark of 9:27.8 made by Alec Grant.

SKY LARKING BREAKS LEG IN RACE AT BELMONT PARK

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Tragedy threw the race for the two-year old turf championship wide open today when Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Sky Larking, leading contender for the honors, broke a leg and was destroyed as Hal Price Headley's Menow came through with an unexpected victory in the 67th champagne stakes at Belmont Park. The bay son of Blue Larkspur, a $13,500 investment as a yearling, snapped his right foreleg three furlongs from the finish of the six and a half-furlong sprint while racing head and head with Menow. There was no chance to save the speed colt which had won five of six races, including the Hopeful, and earned $41,135.

PREDICT RECORD ATTENDANCE FOR THE WORLD SERIES

Landis Decrees That All Games Be Played On Successive Days

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—"Sub way series" or not, there will be no day off for the weary athletes during the world series this fall unless the weather man happens to provide one.

Based on the virtual certainty of another American league pennant for the New York Yankees, Commissioner K. M. Landis, the league presidents and representatives of the contending clubs, decreed today the first two games of the 1937 fall classic would be played in the Yankee stadium Wednesday, Oct. 6, and Thursday, Oct. 7; the next three on the grounds of the National league winners, either the New York Giants of Chicago Cubs, Oct. 8-9-10, and the last two, if necessary, in the Yankee stadium Oct. 11-12.

If Bill Terry's Giants win the pennant, this daily world series schedule will be normal procedure but it will establish a precedent if the Cubs happen to win. Heretofore one day off has been provided for traveling in such cases. Under present railway schedule arrangements, however, it was figured the jump to Chicago could be made in 16½ hours.

If the series should go the limit of seven games, a new all-time attendance mark might be set. One mark—that for a single game—is almost certain to fall. The seating capacity at the Yankee stadium has been increased to 71,303. A sell-out would crack the single game record of 66,669 established at the stadium Oct. 4, last year.

The Polo grounds will seat 56,437 and Wrigley field, home of the Cubs, 46,004. The all-time series attendance record of 328,051 was set during the seven game series of 1926 between the Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals.

All games will begin at 1:30 standard time, except that for a Sunday game in New York Oct 10 the starting time would be 2 p. m. Ticket prices, as usual, will be

CATTLE, GRAIN, POULTRY MARKETS

"SQUEEZE" ON CORN IN A COLLAPSE

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The "squeeze" in September corn collapsed today, threats of a "corner" evaporated, and the price fell precipitously as far as it could go in one session—5 cents a bushel.

The break came in the last 15 minutes when the price tumbled to $1.04½, exactly 12 cents below the high reached yesterday when the "squeeze" was at its peak.

Breaking of the deadlock between owners of corn, or "longs," and speculative sellers committed to deliver, or "shorts," was accompanied by a flood of gossip that a "compromise" between the two groups had been reached, either at the instance of the Board of Trade and Commodity Exchange officials or because of the willingness of "longs" to permit "shorts" to get out of the market at not too great loss.

Pit gossip credited one of the biggest grain merchandising organizations in the country with being the principal force in the collapse.

A leading corn pit trader and a group of followers together with a producers' cooperative were understood to comprise the "short" interest but no confirmation of this could be obtained.

Other pits in the exchange were quiet. Wheat started higher in sympathy with Liverpool strength but later eased to a lower close largely reflecting weakness in corned securities.

At the close corn was varying from unchanged to 5½ cents below Friday's close, September $1.04½, December 62½c to 62¾c, May 63½c to 63¾c; wheat was ½ to ¾ cent lower, September $1.02½, December $1.03½ to $1.04½, May $1.05½ to $1.06½; oats unchanged to ½ cent higher, September 21½c; rye ½ to ¾ cent lower; September 80½c; provisions unchanged to 3½ cents higher.

NEAR 7,500 APPLY DRIVERS LICENSE

Nearly 7,500 automobile drivers in Sedalia and Pettis county have applied for the Missouri drivers license, but as yet according to the statistics of the secretary of state's office there should be approximately 8,666 licenses sold in Pettis county.

Miss Esther Harris, deputy motor vehicle commissioner for this county, has requested those who have yet to secure same do so immediately and avoid any necessary rush when the "dead line" is set. The past several days the "waiting line" at the Thompson Chevrolet garage, where Miss Harris has her office, has become very small and little waiting will be necessary at this time.

When the applications for licenses were first placed on sale more than 600 applications were issued each day for about ten days.

Miss Harris had the distinction of being among the first of many of the secretary of state's many offices to send in applications and has had few returned because of the applicant failing to sign in black ink or to answer all necessary questions.

All persons over the age of sixteen years who drive an automobile must have their drivers license or have made application, otherwise be subject to a fine should they fail to do so by the time the "dead line" is set, if they continue to drive an automobile.

Two Runs By Fire Fighters

The fire departments answered two alarms Saturday afternoon, one of them a "still" alarm at Fifth street and the M. K. T. railroad tracks where sparks from an engine set fire to dry grass. The East Sedalia department answered it at 1:30 o'clock.

At 5:05 o'clock both departments were called to the home of Mrs. Susie Simpson, colored, at 100 West Henry, where an oil stove caught fire, causing $15 damage.
